Focus: Dr. Seuss &
Introduced the Clothing Study

“I will not eat them here or there, I will eat not them anywhere”

The classroom was full of rhyming. We spent two weeks celebrating Dr. Seuss with each day focused on a book and a food to correspond with the story.

The classroom was full of children with wacky hair and clothing for Wacky Wednesday. We had fun dressing in wacky clothes.

New Materials!!

We have many new materials in the classroom to learn more about sewing. Burlap, plastic needles and yarn were available for the children to use. Scraps of different fabric were added to the sensory table along with scissors to cut the fabric. A washer, dryer and clothing have been added to the dramatic play area,

Twiggle The Turtle

Twiggle taught us how to work through conflicts by taking deep breaths and counting. We always enjoy having Twiggle visit our classroom as we learn so much from him and his friends. He talked about how important it is to use our words to tell how we feel instead of pushing or hitting.

Centers

We have been focusing on counting, quantifying and measuring during center times.

Shared writing: The children learned that letters make words and ideas become stories. We are also learning about questions and how they are different than a statement.

A memory game was played where objects were viewed and then some were removed. We had a chance to guess what

Nutrition

We tried green eggs and ham and discovered they taste just like yellow eggs. We used strawberries and bananas to make a pattern like a Dr. Seuss hat. We ate Wacky Wednesday trail mix and ate animal crackers as a way to celebrate Dr. Seuss.
